LETTER FROM THE MAYOR

Dear Friends,

It is my honor to usher in the start of Pride month in Boston with all of you. As a cis-het woman, I understand that allyship requires work and a steadfast commitment to the rights and freedom of all. That’s why I am committed to working in solidarity towards a future free of discrimination, with prosperity and justice for all Boston residents.

While we are gearing up for celebrations, like the Parade, we know that attacks on the LGBTQ+ community, their rights and existence, are happening year round throughout the country. That’s why Pride Month is so much more than a celebration—it is when we renew our vow to fight for justice and equality for all. It is critical that we create systems of support, resources, and protection for our LGBTQ+ community and their allies. I am excited to report on some of the accomplishments we have made in the past year, with the acknowledgment that there remains so much more work to be done.

Over a year ago, we established a new Office of LGBTQ+ Advancement. Since then, the Office has taken on numerous initiatives, including support for Gender-Sexuality Alliances (GSAs) at Boston Public Schools. AmplifyGSA aims to provide leadership development, cultivate safe and brave spaces, foster a better school climate, and enhance inclusive learning environments for LGBTQ+ youth and their allies. Last month, we hosted our inaugural LGBTQ+ Youth Summit, creating a space for queer youth to build community and grow together. In addition to our centering of LGBTQ+ youth, we also completed our first-ever City LGBTQ+ Competency Training for city workers, to ensure that everyone has a positive, dignified experience receiving city services. On policy, we have spent the past year implementing the Gender Inclusivity Ordinance I co-authored as a City Councilor alongside Councilor Liz Breadon, which requires that all City forms and documents are inclusive and respectful to Bostonians’ sex and gender identities. And on public health, our Public Health Commission is partnering with Boston Pride for the People to launch a summer-long awareness campaign focusing on M-pox vaccination and HIV and STI prevention, testing, and treatment.

Lastly, the Equity and Inclusion Cabinet, led by Chief Mariangely Solis Cervera, is working to identify gaps and create opportunities to consider intersectionality and the diversity of identities found in our vast LGBTQ+ community. This includes supporting LBGBQ+ residents who are immigrants, BIPOC, older adults, youth, and with disabilities.

I hope you all join me in taking this opportunity to renew our promise to champion the rights and advancement of our vibrant, wonderful LGBTQ+ community. As we kick-off Pride month and Boston’s most ambitious schedule of Pride events yet, I look forward to being in solidarity with everyone for a prosperous, joyous and just future.

In solidarity,

Michelle Wu
Mayor of Boston

When is a “near catastrophic car chase”, neither catastrophic nor a car chase? When pedestrians are moving faster than the cars! I guess it all depends on how you define “near”. Words matter, and never more than when you’re Prince Harry and that wife of his...and I think it bears mentioning again that prior to their liaison, her biggest credit was on basic cable (of course, Princess Diana was a school teacher). It is true—Prince Harry, Meg, and her mother Doria were in a car in NYC. And it is also true that paparazzi were surrounding the vehicle trying to get photos...God knows of what. But it is also true that funeral processions in small towns move quicker. That reality doesn’t invoke a situation on par with the death of Princess Diana.

The final chapter in an actual car chase has been written. Last week, Anne Heche was finally laid to rest, nine months after her death. I can’t blame the family for waiting. The last time someone declared her dead and put a sheet over her head, she popped up and said, “Surprise!” So, y’know, anything could have happened.

An end has also come to the contretemps between Priscilla Presley and her granddaughter Riley Keough. You may recall that Priscilla was listed as co-trustee of the Presley estate in the event of the death of Lisa Marie. However, a document allegedly written in 2016 cut her out. Priscilla—who, it should be added, is the only reason there is still a Presley estate—questioned its validity. And, trust me, nobody crosses Priscilla. Riley wisely reached a sealed agreement with her nana and is said to be “very content”. And still breathing!

As predicted, the Tony Awards will happen as planned on June 11th. And they will be televised as planned. But they will rely on presenters winging it, versus having a scripted show. Under these conditions, the Writers Guild has promised to not picket the event—an event where I predict (again) most presenters and winners will express solidarity with the writers, which should help their cause. On the other hand, the Daytime Emmys will not take place as scheduled on June 17th. Because nobody can expect TV actors to “wing it”.

When I heard that my dear friend Mary Callanan was heading a production of “The Prom” at the Speakeasy Theatre in Boston, I was all in! If anyone was born to play the diva-licious role of Dee Dee, it’s Mary. The fact that the Speakeasy assembled such a uniformly talented cast is no surprise. It’s a show that needs to be sold, and this cast did just that. The ensemble stood out with some tight harmonies and decent dance moves. More impressive was that each person had an individual identity—something even Broadway companies struggle with. The performance I attended had a special person in the audience. Chad Beguelin, who co-wrote the book and lyrics, heartily applauded the cast—and said this was the most impressive production of the show he’s seen. So, what are you waiting for? It runs through June 10th and you can grab your tickets at SpeakeasyStage.com.

I’ve seen a number of videos called “Ride”, but nothing I’d expect to see on the Hallmark Channel. This “Ride” features Jake Foy, who is openly gay and Canadian (well, it is Hallmark). Fun fact—one of his first roles was in the original workshop of the musical “Come From Away”—so he’s like the Canadian Jenifer Lewis (for the three of you who will get that). In “Ride”, he plays Tuff McMurray, a gay member of the central family. Yes, a gay cowboy. From Canada. On the Hallmark Channel. This is how the network describes him: “Tuff is a man of many hats: he protects his brother in the ring by being his bullfighter, he is the Foreman of the ranch, and he’s also an aspiring musician.” For those of you new to the Hallmark Channel, that’s code for “gay”. Why am I telling you any of this? Because Jake just got engaged to his longtime real-life beau, Nicolas La Traverse. Congrats!

I’d be remiss if I didn’t mention that “Ride” also stars Dylan Neal, who at one point was on “The Bold and the Beautiful”—and played a male stripper! I’d lost track of him in the ensuing years, but he seems to have matured quite nicely. Maybe I’ll post some of that steamier celluloid on BillyMasters.com.

Come the fall, a shake-up is headed for “Bachelor Nation”. No, Chris Harrison has not been reinstated. “The Golden Bachelor” will feature a bachelor and prospective mates who are over 60. Funny, I thought some of the previous bachelorettes were pretty close to that! While I probably won’t watch “The Golden Bachelor”, I would tune in for “The Golden Bachelorette”...if it promised a bevy of mature men!

That leads us to a story about Colton Underwood, the first (and, thus far, only) openly gay “Bachelor”. In September 2021, he was spotted with Jordan C. Brown—I think the two were making out on a beach in Hawaii, but I’d have to consult the archives...and, really, who has that kind of time? Two years later, they’re married. The couple tied the knot in a lavish three-day event in Napa Valley. Colton said, “I’ve never been more sure about something.” Of course, he also said that to Becca...and Cassie...and Tia...and Aly...and...

Someone who may not be a gay bachelor for long is Andy Cohen. He revealed that his son Ben told him, “I want another daddy.” Andy responded by saying, “Well, maybe I’ll fall in love one day, and you will have another daddy.” Of course, since he has a penchant for youngsters, I doubt the basic cable honcho will be calling anyone “Daddy” anytime soon—other than Anderson Cooper, of course!

By the by, Cohen posted a couple of nude photos last week. Why? Ostensibly it was to draw attention to skin cancer. The first photo was him in his mid-twenties and is in B&W—which is what they were using back then. He appears to be sitting on the edge of an outdoor statue, and captioned the snap, “Feel like I still got it! Should I recreate this 30 year old nude photo????” Due to the overwhelming response, he doffed his top (and then some)—and the results are impressive. Under that photo, he wrote a caption reminding people to wear sunscreen and get naked... for a skin check with your dermatologist. That Andy—he’s a giver! They’re both on BillyMasters.com.

Sometimes my readers hear about stories before I do. Shawn sent in an “Ask Billy” question which piqued my interest. “What do you know about those English divers who are starting an OnlyFans page? What can we see? Are they really nude? Is there any sex involved?”

I knew nothing about this fledgling enterprise, but I know a thing or two about hot British divers. And let me tell you Tom Daley is only the tip...and who wants just the tip? The divers in question are Matty Lee, Daniel Goodfellow and Matthew Dixon. But, alas, they are not planning any adult content. “But hold up...remember I’m a Team GB diver, not a [porn star]. So everything will be SFW and a place when I can interact with you all,” said Matty. But he’s charging $20/month for Safe For Work footage? Uh, that’s a hard pass. Now, if you’d like to see what they won’t show you, go to BillyMasters.com—which is only $5/month. Face it—we’re older, we’re cheaper, and we show the goods!

When we’re doing a deep dive into some Brits, it’s time to end another column. If there was footage of Team GB getting all of their nooks and crannies checked by a dermatologist, it would definitely turn up on www.BillyMasters.com—the site that focuses on healthy naughty bits! If you have a question for me, dash it off to Billy@BillyMasters.com and I promise to get back to you before Ben calls some other man Daddy! Until next time, remember, one man’s filth is another man’s bible.

6 New Kids' Books for Pride

by Dana Rudolph | drudolph@mombian.com
contributing writer

I'm celebrating Pride by showcasing some new kids' books about Pride, LGBTQ history, and prominent LGBTQ people. Bring these volumes into your homes and share them with others who may enjoy them, this month and all year 'round!

Two middle-grade books offer a look at LGBTQ history:

"A Child's Introduction to Pride: The Inspirational History and Culture of the LGBTQIA+ Community," by Sarah Prager, illustrated by Caitlin O'Dwyer (Black Dog & Leventhal): Prager, author of several excellent collective biographies of LGBTQ people, here takes a broader, more systematic approach to LGBTQ history and concepts. Through her usual clear and engaging prose, she gives us her thoughtful takes on LGBTQ achievements, cultures, and communities. The book could either be read right through or happily browsed at random; the layout is bright and engaging, with lots of side boxes containing quotes, questions to ponder, entertaining additional tidbits, and a pull-out poster with a timeline of important events. This is bound to be a go-to volume for schools and libraries (or should be, in places that do not ban LGBTQ content) but should find a welcome place on many home bookshelves as well.

"Hispanic Star: Sylvia Rivera," by Claudia Romo Edelman and J. Gia Loving, illustrated by Cheyne Gallarde (Roaring Brook Press): Transgender icon Sylvia Rivera is the focus of this readable and informative biography that looks at her life from her birth to immigrant, migrant parents to her involvement at Stonewall and activism in helping trans youth. Published by the organization Hispanic Star in partnership with Macmillan, and available in English or Spanish editions, this is a welcome middle-grade biography of a figure who has long been due one. Content warning: Mention of domestic violence and her mother's death by suicide.

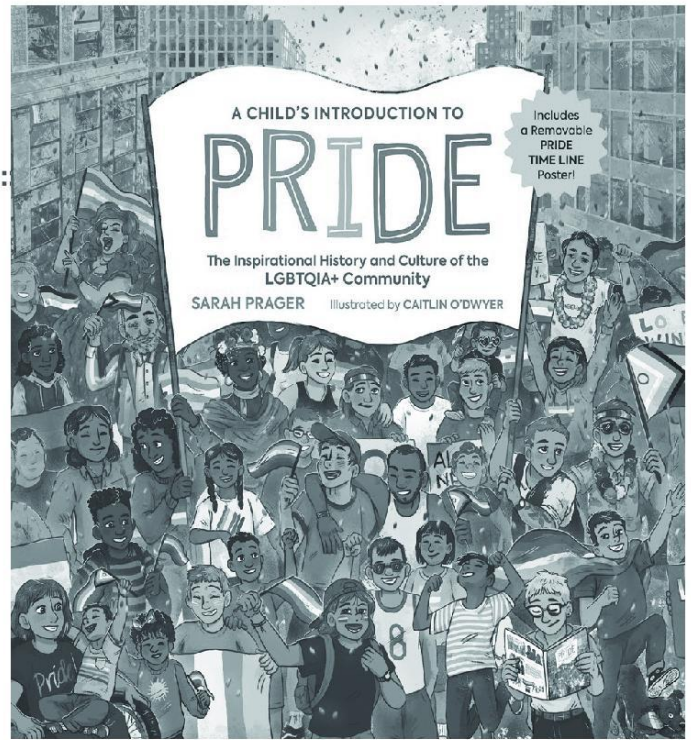

Two middle-grade books compile short biographies of renowned LGBTQ people:

"Rebel Girls Celebrate Pride: 25 Tales of Self-Love and Community," by Alexis Stratton, Jestine Ware, and Shadae Mallory (Rebel Girls): This bright and inspiring collection of one-page biographies from the Rebel Girls media company includes not just girls/women, but also nonbinary people. They range from older figures like Marsha Johnson, Sylvia Rivera, and Billie Jean King, to younger ones such as singer Janelle Monáe, writer Darcie Little Badger, and soccer star Quinn, as well as scientists, activists, and others who have made an impact on the world but are less widely known. The book highlights a diverse set of careers and places of impact, with a final section giving readers related activity ideas. Bright illustrations by female and nonbinary artists from around the world add color and interest. A worthy addition to the growing number of LGBTQ-inclusive collective biographies.

"Gender Heroes: 25 Amazing Transgender, Non-Binary and Genderqueer Trailblazers from Past and Present!" from Jessica Kingsley Publishers, illustrated by Filipa Namorado: This bright and celebratory book profiles 25 transgender, nonbinary, and gender nonconforming people from the U.S. and U.K. Within the pages are historical figures like Marsha P. Johnson and Sylvia Rivera as well as actors and entertainers like Laverne Cox, Elliott Page, Chella Man, and Alok Vaid-Menon; LGBTQ activists (accidental or intentional) like Gavin Grimm, Freddy McConnell, and Jazz Jennings; politicians like Sarah McBride; and more.

Two fiction works offer fun stories of Pride and community:

"I Got You Babe," by Paul Coccia (Orca): Twelve-year-old Mac, out, proud, and flamboyant, has convinced his school to give the year's fun fair a Pride theme. He also wants to be the star, and persuades his best friend Amy to do a Sonny and Cher drag performance, with him as Cher and her as Sonny. But Mac's push for perfection also pushes Amy away, until she reveals she doesn't like Sonny's less-exciting costumes and really wants to be Cher herself. Is there room in the show for two divas? Will their friendship survive the strain? And what happens when Mac's big plans for the show come up against its limited budget? This is a lighthearted but entertaining tale of friendship, with a queer protagonist fully supported by his family. The book is part of the Orca Currents series, "short, high-interest novels with contemporary themes written specifically for middle-school students reading below grade level." It might also appeal to slightly younger readers looking for simple chapter books.

"Grandad's Pride," by Harry Woodgate (Little Bee): The follow-up (but standalone) volume to the Stonewall Award-winning picture book "Grandad's Camper" is as warm and joyous as the first. Young Milly is again visiting Grandad for the summer. When she finds an old rainbow Pride flag in his attic, he explains to her what Pride is, and she motivates him to help her start a Pride parade in his small town. Soon many neighbors are volunteering their time and resources for the event. A sweet and lovely story about intergenerational wisdom and community spirit. Woodgate's illustrations are again outstanding—vibrant and cheerful, with lots of little details for readers to discover.

The above books are all new, published this year—but across all years, there are now more than 40 books for kids 0 to 12 years old specifically about Pride, its symbols, and the LGBTQ leaders who are part of its history. Visit my Database of LGBTQ Family Books at mombian.com/database and filter by the "Pride" tag to find more. I wish you and your families happy reading and a joyous Pride!
